DISCOVERY

The last of the dirt was cleared and there it was, a beautiful rare mosaic. 'I've finally found it,' he whispered, joyfully. Suddenly, the earth shook. Dirt rained back in the hole slowly before turning into an avalanche, covering the discovery of the century and McGregor. The secret remained safe.

THE VIKINGS ARE COMING

Shapes on the horizon. Excitedly, I ran to the shore, shouting the news. A crowd gathered as the fierce-looking ships landed. Then the terror began. I fell then ... darkness. I woke to death and despair. The ships were back on the horizon, the devil's soldiers laughing as they sailed.

A Guide to Writing Mini Sagas Help Sheet

- A mini saga must be no more than 50 words. (This doesn't include the title.)
- A mini saga must be a proper story. This can be a challenge in only 50 words, but make sure your saga has a beginning, middle and an end.
- Be original! You can retell other famous stories, but it must be in your own words. Trust your imagination and have a go at creating your very own mini saga!
- Remember you can abbreviate words too – changing 'it is' to 'it's' saves a word!
- Write your mini saga in the grid below, one word per square. It only has 50 spaces so you know your mini saga is the right length!
